Re: Ordinance to amend Chapter 2 of the City Code as it relates to the Youth Advisory Council Membership

Executive Summary

On June 5, 2017 the City Council discussed amending the requirements of the appointments of the non-voting, liaison members. Currently, City Council appoints two to three non-voting, liaison members, consisting of a combination of a City Council member, Youth Community Coalition (YC²) staff member, and/or a Columbia Public School staff member. The City Council would like to add additional non-voting, liaison members from local public and/or private high schools.

Discussion

At the June 5th, 2017 City Council meeting, the City Council requested an ordinance be brought forth to amend the membership requirements of the non-voting, liaison members. The recommended changes include allowing at least one appointment of a public and/or private high school representative as a non-voting, liaison member per school that is represented on the YAC. Additional non-voting, liaison members would consist of one City Council member and one YC² representative.

City Council members agreed that the additional school representation would allow for better communication among schools. The YAC is composed of high school students from any public and/or private high school. Since several schools are represented by students, actions taken by the YAC affect these schools and additional staff representation would help students implement initiatives within their schools more effectively.

The City Council also agreed with the recommendation of removing the requirement that the non-voting, liaison members be appointed by the City Council. Each of the non-voting, liaison organizations will appoint their representative(s) by submitting appointments in writing to the city staff liaison. With this potential increase in non-voting liaison members, staff feels the appointment process will be more efficient.
