Race Matters, Friends (RMF)

Topic (please be specific): "Hope is not naive; Hope is work." I will discuss how the Missouri Public Records Act (Sunshine) is a tool of hope for both journalists and citizens to participate in small "d" democracy. Transparency, in the form of hope (as I see it), activates citizens' needs and their right to hold public servants accountable. The City needs to step up its game in terms of responsiveness and stop using the City Attorney's office's prattle to deny the public access to information framed by a "basement" interpretation of the Missouri Sunshine Laws. Nothing prohibits the City from being MORE transparent than a political will, not to.
