PUBLIC HEARING

Huffington described the Community Welcome Center project at Clary-Shy Community Park.

The project is budgeted at $5.2 million, funded by donations through the Missouri Development Finance Board, the county's ARPA allocation and the Park Sales Tax.

Huffington shared the public input process which includes BeHeardCoMo online feedback and a drop-in meeting Feb. 27. He showed the Commission photos of the plans and room layout for the event space, production kitchen, offices, resource library and community conference room, as well as plans for 52 additional parking spaces.

Devine asked about hours for the public event space?

Huffington said those have not been worked out yet, but there will be opportunity for the event space to be available for rental, administered by Parks and Recreation. There is a maintenance plan as to which areas of the space that Parks and Recreation will be responsible for, and what the Columbia Center for Urban Agriculture (CCUA) will be responsible for.

Farnen asked about staffing?

Huffington said an additional custodian will be needed once this facility is complete.

Patrie commented that the fundraising seemed to go more quickly than anticipated. He asked if staff had confidence in the construction budget?

Huffington said, yes, they do.

Patrie asked about a contingency if the project should go above budget?

Huffington said that it would depend on the amount. There would be a potential to seek more private donations or potentially other funding sources.

Devine opened the public hearing. With no comments, Devine closed the public hearing.

Henry made a motion, seconded by Farnen, that the Commission recommends the proposed Community Welcome Center for approval by City Council. Motion passed 5-0.

NEW BUSINESS

Huffington shared information about the temporary closure of the ARC Water Zone this summer. The closure is needed to replace the play structure and aggregate surface surrounding it. The pool will be closed from Memorial Day through Labor Day. In its place, Huffington said all three outdoor pools, Albert-Oakland Family Aquatic Center, Douglass Family Aquatic Center and Lake of the Woods Pool will be open. All three, in addition to Hickman Pool, will host water fitness classes and lap swimming. ARC members will be able to access all outdoor pools at no charge.

To take advantage of the closure, Huffington said other work will be done, including: new flooring in party rooms, hallway and offices; new pool pac heater; replace VGB drain grates; replace sand in filter system; service and clean filters; service pool pumps and motors; replace natatorium cubbies and routine maintenance.
