Late charges shall not be assessed against the balance due on a delinquent account if the customer is current on the payments required by a settlement agreement for the account. Late charges shall not be assessed against the balance due on a delinquent account if the service has been disconnected.

(2) A program to delay assessment of the three (3) percent late charge to eligible residential utility customers for a period not to exceed twenty-one (21) days is hereby established pursuant to the following guidelines:

a. b. The customer must contact the city utility customer service office prior to the customer's current utility bill due date and request participation in the program to delay late charge assessment. The customer's account must not be past due for any previous billing period at the time of the request to participate in the program.

c. Once the customer is determined to be eligible for the program, the imposition of the three (3) percent late charge will be delayed for a period not to exceed twenty-one (21) days for each billing cycle occurring during the next twelve (12) months.

d. If a participating customer does not pay the utility bill by the end of the late charge assessment delay period, the three (3) percent late charge shall be assessed to the account at the end of the delay period.

e. If at any time during participation in the program, a customer is disconnected at least two (2) times for non-payment, such customer shall be removed from the program.

f. After twelve (12) months of participation, the customer will be reviewed for continued program participation. If the customer no longer qualifies for utility assistance, the customer shall be notified and removed from participation in the program during the next billing cycle. Upon removal from the program, the assessment of late charges shall resume pursuant to standard procedures for billing and payment.
